

A. Lincoln

These soldiers were given a copy of the draft of the address to the nation on the 14th of November. The people of this city have been made aware of the address in many different ways.
The address was read in many places and the people of this city have been made aware of the address in many different ways. The address was read in many places and the people of this city have been made aware of the address in many different ways.

For as it is the intention of the people of this city to have the address read
in many places and the people of this city have been made aware of the address in many different ways. The address was read in many places and the people of this city have been made aware of the address in many different ways. The address was read in many places and the people of this city have been made aware of the address in many different ways.

"HAY DRAFT" OF THE GETTYSBURG ADDRESS
LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

FOUR SCORE AND SEVEN YEARS AGO

our fathers brought forth, upon this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived, and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met here on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of it as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense we can not dedicate—we can not consecrate—we can not hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled, here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they have, thus far, so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation shall have a new birth of freedom; and that this government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

SOLDIER'S NATIONAL CEMETERY — GETTYSBURG, PENNSYLVANIA
PANORAMA 99 OF 99

Licensed Battlefield Guide Gary Kross introduces the CD-ROM and presents an overview of the battles at Gettysburg. His narration is also included in three full-length audio CDs and the illustrated tour book.

The events leading up to the battle are presented with narration and an animated map. A teacher's guide describes how to effectively use Virtual Gettysburg's detailed battlefield maps for students of the battle.

Each one of the 21 guided tours are supplemented by historical photos of people, places and monuments. Interactive maps and a compass help users visualize their position and navigate around the battlefield.

Virtual Gettysburg concludes with a re-enactment of the Gettysburg Address by James Getty. He appears annually at the Gettysburg Battlefield Remembrance Day ceremonies.
